Anthony Burt

When I was younger, I always explored wild places and made dens in trees. I used to love walking around clifftops with my grandad and his black and white Border Collie dog, Bob. I still enjoy walking along beaches, across fields and up mountains, because being out in the countryside is great.

The other day, whilst I was on a long walk, it was very foggy and I spotted this spooky-looking tree. I love ghostly, eerie things as I think they can give you great ideas for stories. Take a look at the picture I took of the tree and see what it makes you think about.

Writing Challenge: I'd like you to imagine you're out on a walk, with a dog if you like, when a spooky fog suddenly creeps in all around you. It's so thick, you can't see much, just some trees nearby. What has caused this weird fog? Is there something in the fog? A ghost? Something else? How will you get home? And why has your dog run off towards the trees? Quick, shouldn't you go after your dog to see what's happening...in the fog?
